She held that the mind develops as the hand grows skillful and that beauty is its own excuse for existing, and that it must find a place in every industry. She then cited Sweden, saying that, although it is the mother of manual training, it paid no attention to arteducation, and the consequence is that its products are clumsy and are far less salable than the products of more artistic France. In concluding, she said that in order to train the child properly in art, the imagination must be eveloped before the memory, mass must precede detail, surface must solve outline, free hand drawing must come ahead of the use of any instruments, and the child must be given confidence in himself.

Mr. Cooper is superintendent of the board of education and Mrs. McVicker and Mr. Wallace are both prominent in educational circles, Frank Evans, the re-elected treasurer, is from Ogden. On the executive committee, Sanpete county is represented by Mr. Christensen, E. L. Whiteside is from Davis county and James Brown from Utan county.

The only hitch in passing the new constitution and by-laws was over a clause which made all papers read before the association the property of that body. This was objected to, and after some discussion an amendment by Professor W. M. Stewart was appended, nyoviding that no paper should be published without the consent of the author.

Making their school life a success. Getting an education is much like wooing a girl; some one else may give yourself. Schoolroom equipment is most important. The seat on which the child spends so many hours a day should be fitted at least twice a year. The eyes demand that the light be should be fitted at least twice a year. The eyes demand that the light be sood and the text books should be properly printed. Bad air not only breeds disease, but makes it impossible for pupils or teacher to do their best work.

Children, especially in the lower grades, should leave the school room as the business man leaves his office, with work banished from their minds. Home work for young pupils is highly in-

White, 106, a cowman, and thirteen over popular John H. Seeley, a mixed breeder from the country. He classes as a sheepman, however, though he breeds some Shorthorn cattle. George F. Beckstead is the only other candidate who has passed the 100 mark, although W. L. White, M. K. Parsons, B. B. Heywood and A. J. Gregory are crowding the three figure mark.

Several new candidates have appeared in the contest during the week all of whom have had promising support from their friends and all the old nominees have made good gains since the previous publication of the vote.

Health Restored By Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt.

The man who studies out the reason for his weakness will never swallow a drug to cure it, because he knows it will not cure. He knows that he lacks vital power, the vigor of his nerves and organs, and he knows that his vital power is electricity. That is the only remedy for him. It will cure him; it will give back the vim, the ambition, confidence; put vigor in his body and courage in his heart. I know this, I know that my Electric Belt will restore any weak, debilitated man or woman to vigorous health.
